

The Immediate Management of Anaphylactic Shock certificated course

The Immediate Management of Anaphylactic Shock- Anaphylactic shock, or anaphylaxis, is a life-threatening, serious allergic reaction to a trigger such as food substances or insect sting. If it is not treated appropriately, it may cause death.

This training covers how to recognise and treat anaphylaxis as well as what can trigger it and how auto-adrenalin injectors work. We will also cover CPR.

This course would be useful for anyone working in a sector where there is an increased risk of someone, a staff member or customer, suffering a severe allergic reaction.

Please contact training@vsa.org.uk for information on availability.