Subject: Disabled Student Commitment

As Vice Chancellor and CEO of Lincoln Bishop University, I am delighted to support our University's commitment to the principles of AdvanceHE's Disabled Student Commitment (DSC).

Our named key contact for the DSC work is Phil Davis, Head of Student Success.

Lincoln Bishop University is committed to being a community that welcomes and supports a diverse population of students and staff, with an ethos of mutual respect and the benefit we can bring for others. We are an open, forward-looking community that celebrates equality, diversity and inclusion, creating community and belonging through thoughtful action.

The University's integrated, institution-wide academic and pastoral support for disabled students is well established at all stages of the student journey. The University is committed to the development of academic, personal and professional potential and offers services which are aimed at maximising support and outcomes for all disabled students.

Lincoln Bishop recognises the importance of an effective response to disabled students once they have shared information about their needs. Our aim is to ensure appropriate information, advice and guidance is in place to support transition into and successful engagement within the higher education community. The University's outreach activities and support services reflect the needs of disabled students and offer a person-centred approach to helping students make informed choices throughout their student experience.

Whilst our award-winning approach to support is firmly in place, we remain committed to future enhancements to achieve positive outcomes for disabled students and graduates.

Yours sincerely

Professor Andrew Gower
