The Lighthouse
by Lin Marsh

On the cliff a lighthouse stands,
Straight and tall,
Flashing out across the sea,
Warning all.

Shine out through the darkness,
Shine out clear and bright,
Shine out with your message,
Guiding the ships,
Bringing them home,
Safe when they see your light.

On the cliff a lighthouse stands,
White and red,
Flashing out across the sea:
"Rocks ahead!"

Shine out through the darkness,
Shine out clear and bright,
Shine out with your message,
Guiding the ships,
Bringing them home,
Safe when they see your light.

From the top a beacon glows,
Night and day,
Flashing out across the sea:
"Keep away!"

Shine out through the darkness,
Shine out clear and bright,
Shine out with your message,
Guiding the ships,
Bringing them home,
Safe when they see your light.
