

Stool

New sensuous surfaces

Sculptural and functional. Wherever you place the charming Stools they attract your attention and offer comfortable seating. Stool is designed by the Danish, award-winning architect Anne Boysen, who is known for her ability to combine colours and materials.

Based on a discreet, Nordic colour palette Bent Hansen now introduces seven new surfaces on Stool. The collection includes an exciting mix of woven and felted textiles that make Stool a sensuous experience.

Anne Boysen tells about the new surfaces on Stool:
"To me it is important that every piece of furniture speaks to the senses - both visually but also when you touch it. The new Stools were not only supposed to mix and match. They should also appeal to your tactile sense. The idea is that the different textures should invite you to feel the fabric and make you want to move the Stools around while discovering new ways of using them in your home."

THIS IS Bent Hansen

At Bent Hansen we make it a point of honour that the quality of the craftsmanship and the materials shines through, and that our furniture expresses the simplicity and honesty that is forever in fashion.

Owner and creative director Henrik Hvid Hansen is the innovative force behind the company Bent Hansen. Surrounded by qualified craftsmen, he has the best opportunities to try out new ideas and test different kinds of leather and textiles.

Through its 60 years of experience the company Bent Hansen has always considered solid workmanship of great importance. Back in 1948 Henrik Hvid Hansen's grandfather, upholsterer Svend Hansen, founded the company. Back then the key competence was restoring old furniture.

In 1966 Svend Hansen's son, Bent Hansen, took over the company. He expanded the business and started manufacturing interior for restaurants, hotels and ships.

In 1983 third generation, Henrik Hvid Hansen was ready to enter the family company. As an upholsterer like his father and grandfather before him and deeply fascinated by modern design Henrik has turned Bent Hansen into a modern design company with its own line of furniture design and home accessories.
