Going in 10-6 at half time the RGC players knew the first half performance against Bridgend Athletic was not up to the usual standard expected.

Head Coach Chris Horsman was delighted with his player's response after the half time talk in the dressing room "It was another pleasing performance today, and once again it shows how far we have come after we lost this fixture at Bridgend earlier in the season. It is great to see the development of the side and after the conversations at half time the players took on board the messages from the coaching staff and solved the problems in the second half. Every player played well today, as we scored 9 good tries but I have to praise Rhodri Carlton-Jones who I thought was outstanding and was key to our attacking game in the second half.'
