FIND YOUR ROOTS IN EAST CLARE

East Clare Heritage Center provides a comprehensive research facility for people with East Clare Descendants and encourages the publication of family history in their Journal Sliabh Aughty. This Journal goes to over two thousand households throughout the World and is therefore an ideal vehicle to promote family research and make inquiry.

They charge a fee of one hundred and five euro, for a preliminary search of their records. In most cases this is all that will be charged. You will be notified of any additional costs. Advice is freely given on the availability of records and the possibility of positive results.

Their interest in local history and local publications has insured that most sources have been examined and their reports do not consist solely of a stagnant list of baptismal dates that are of no great interest to anybody. They notify all researchers of the availability of local histories and their authors. These authors are normally residents and have huge amounts of local un-published material.
