

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Saturday night as a sailor named Dempsey, a native of Courtnacsherry, was getting on board his ship, which is lying in the South Channel, he lost his balance on the planks leading to her and fell into the river. His cries for help aroused some men on board the vessel, but before they could render assistance Dempsey had disappeared and was swept down by the current. The vicinity of the accident was yesterday dragged but the body was not recovered. It would appear that the unfortunate man was drinking rather hard during Saturday.
