A message from Surrey County Council...

As you may know there will be changes this year to children's centres and how Surrey County Council supports families.

The new approach will involve Surrey County Council focusing its resources on helping the families most in need of support, which means that some of the existing children's centres will close and others will become Family Centres. Surrey County Council will no longer provide universal services for all families at Family Centres but other organisations, such as health visitors, may offer these at the centres and at other community venues.

You can use the Family Information Directory to find universal and other services, support groups, activities, events and more.

The changes will take place at different times across Surrey's 11 districts and boroughs, so to make sure families can find out what is happening in their area the district and borough pages on the Family Information Service website will be regularly updated from April. They will provide information about when current activities offered at children's centres will close and where Family Centres will open.

In addition there is a new page on the website which provides information about the final proposals that were agreed by Surrey County Council's Cabinet. This also has a link to the results of the consultation that was undertaken to get views and suggestions on the draft proposals.

Timelines for closure...

As you can see by the message above Surrey CC are beginning the process of closing centres and services. Currently we have received no notice of closure dates for Burhill. We will let you know as soon as we hear.

Thank you to those of you who have passed on your compliments and kind words at a very difficult time for the Centre staff team.

Are you caring for a child or young person with a physical disability or autism? Enjoy a cup of tea or coffee with a biscuit and meet other parents in the same situation. Share ideas on coping with caring in a confidential and supportive environment. Action for Carers Advisors will be there to help with support, advice and information on local services. For more information you can contact Action for Carers on 0303 040 1234.
