

Discussion to understand local views on proposed options for the future delivery of acute hospital services at Epsom & St Helier Hospitals with Hattie Fowler, Senior Consultant, Mott MacDonald

Epsom and St Helier Hospitals have faced significant challenges for many years which means there is a need to change how it delivers its acute services for people who are seriously ill. Most services do not need to change and will continue to be delivered from both Epsom and St Helier hospitals (these are known as district services).

Merton, Sutton and Surrey Downs Clinical Commissioning Groups (CCGs), who are responsible for the planning of health services in your local area have identified a number of potential solutions to how major acute services may be delivered in the future. The CCGs have asked Mott MacDonald to undertake some work to help them understand the possible impact that making any of these proposed changes may have on the community.

Mott MacDonald want to hear about the positive and negative impact of any changes to acute services on parents/carers and their cared for family members.

Come along to hear more about the potential changes to acute services which are being considered and to provide your views on how this may impact you and the local community.

Thursday 9 May, 10am to 12pm

Chaucer Centre, Room B, Canterbury Road, Morden, SM4 6PX
