This week:

Wow, with only 4 days in school and so much fitted in, this week has really flown by. In English we have been developing our writing using tools like alliteration, synonyms and onomatopoeia, whilst writing creative stories about a dragon. In Maths we have been looking at division and sharing equally between a number of parts, often using fractions.

Menna did a fantastic session on Wednesday with everyone, looking at, and creating our own Paschal Candle. The candles the children created were beautiful, ask them to tell you what they mean.

In topic, we have begun to look at what our homes here in Oxford are like, and take note of some of the things we take for granted.

Next week:

We will be continuing our topic next week, comparing what we have discussed about life in Oxford and around the UK to the lives of children in towns in Africa. We shall be thinking about what things are the same and what is different about where we live and how we live. In Maths we shall be problem solving with multiplication and division. In English we shall be continuing to develop interesting skills and techniques, allowing our writing to be that bit more exciting.

Reminders:

Please do not bring dogs, or any other pets, onto school site. This rule has been in place for many years and does cover the whole site. Thank you for your cooperation.

Thank you to everyone who brought in the money for the lego workshop, the office are still able to take payments even after the event so please pop in if you haven't paid - we are unable to run other trips and activities if we do not have enough contributions for enrichment activities. We have sent out specific letters this week.

Have a lovely weekend.
