Controlling your breathing can help you cope with stress

Square breathing is a technique in which you visualize tracing the lines of a square with each inhale and exhale. It is helpful for anxiety and stress relief because it helps to calm and regulate the autonomic nervous system which is involved in our responses to stress.

Sugar intake and young people

UK children are consuming around 13 cubes or 52g of sugar a day, says Public Health England, based on results from the National Diet and Nutrition Survey. Too much sugar is bad for children's health as it can lead to the build-up of harmful fat. This fat can cause weight gain and serious diseases. Cases of type 2 diabetes in the UK has risen 41% in the last 3 years.

Half of the sugar in children's diet comes from sugary drinks, sweets, biscuits, cakes, puddings, sugary breakfast cereals and higher-sugar yoghurts and puddings.

Making such swaps every day could remove around 2,500 sugar cubes per year from a child's diet, by swapping chocolate, puddings, sweets, cakes and pastries for healthier options such as malt loaf, sugar-free jellies, lower-sugar custards and rice puddings would reduce their intake even more, according to Change4life
