Competition Winner!

Ethan in year 2 entered a creative writing competition through the National Geographic Kids magazine earlier this year to celebrate the launch of a new Children’s Garden created within Kew Gardens opening on 18th May 2019.

The competition was to write a poem inspired by a garden with a total of 6 entries (1 winner and 5 runners up) to be chosen by a panel of judges, the main judge being the Young People’s Laureate for London, Momtaza Mehri. Ethan was chosen as one of the 5 runners up and was invited on Thursday 16th May to Kew Gardens for the press day prior to the opening. He had a wonderful day together with a few other selected children visiting the Children’s Garden, exploring the 4 zones inspired by “What plants need to grow: Air, Water, Earth and Sun”. He had an amazing time trying and playing on the range of equipment installed. His poem, together with the other 4 runners up, is on display in the adjacent White Peaks café.

We would like to congratulate Ethan on his achievement – he must have been very proud to see his poem on display!

In My Garden.

In my garden are some big plump worms,
In the morning it’s what every Blackbird yearns.

Pulling at them, tugging them out of the ground,
On the lawn and the flowerbed is where they’ll be found.

Tug, tug, squawk, squawk,
Tug, tug, squawk, squawk,

Sometimes I disturb them when I go for a walk.

Sports News...

This week it was the turn of our swimmers to represent the school in the School Games Level 2 swimming gala at Daventry Leisure centre, after qualifying in the Level 1 competition. Our team did extremely well against much bigger schools, with William, Jack, Joshua and Lydia winning their races. Well done to the entire team: William L, Erin, Hazel, Lydia, Georgina, Josh, Emma and Jack L – you should be VERY proud of yourselves.

Happy Half Term Everyone!

It doesn’t seem possible that we’ve come to the end of another term already, with only one left this academic year! Thank you for all your support with your children’s learning this term and we look forward to a busy and rewarding summer term after the break. Enjoy yourselves, whatever you do this half term.

Reading idea of the week:

Make it your challenge to read as much as possible over the holidays – a few minutes a day makes all the difference.
