This Week

Simmons have been playing some memory games and creating some wonderful art work to sell at the Christmas Fair.

Inkpen and Rosen have been on the art work production line as well with some excellent pictures for the Christmas Fair. They have also been in to the hall practising their nativity on the stage.

Sharratt and Donaldson have been re-telling the story of Handa's Surprise. In maths they have been learning the addition and subtraction fact families.

Potter and Ahlberg have been preparing for their Mince Pies and Magic extravaganza. In PE they have been developing their hockey skills.

Murphy and Dahl have been looking at the geography of Italy and locating volcanoes on a map.

Morpurgo and Kinney have been making submarines and exploring floating and sinking and how the changing density alters the way the submarines work. They have also been learning how to express their opinions on art by Anthony Gormley.

Hergé and Walliams have been painting their own version of some Japanese artwork call The Wave. In geography they have been learning about contour lines and will be using their knowledge when making models of Alchemy Island.

Shakespeare and Rowling have been carrying out drama and writing monologues inspired by their new class novel Pig Heart Boy.

The Barrier

The barrier is now fully repaired and working. In order to accommodate the early morning out of school club it will be raised until 8am and then lowered for the rest of the day.

Please use the 'Children's Centre' part of the car park for dropping off, not directly outside the school as this is required for staff parking. If we have further incidents of dangerous driving on the site then the barrier will be lowered all the time. Please help us to keep all the children safe.

Christmas Fair

Don't forget next Friday is our Christmas Fair.

You should have already received a flyer with information about all the exciting stalls and games that will be on offer. If you haven't please check book bags or ask your child where it is!

We look forward to seeing you next Friday.

View from the Classroom Floor

Year 6 children have started their new topic Blood Heart Boy and have started reading the novel. The children in Year 5 have been trying to multiply a 2-digit number by a two-digit number. Trust us it is hard at first but after you do some practice you will get it!

It was great to have our parents in school to look at our work. The parents also got to have a cup of tea or coffee and a biscuit – lucky them!

Have a great weekend.

Sophie, Honey, Joseph, Lily and Lola.

View from the Classroom Floor

The Christmas Choir with Miss Davies is really getting in to full swing. There has been some amazing singing and they really are looking forward to performing at the Christmas Fair.

Other children have been heard to say;

“They are very good at singing and they’re doing really well!”

“They are all very good.”

Why not come to see them next week at the Christmas Fair?

Betsy

Some Comments from the Coffee Morning Questionnaire

The teachers are amazing at looking after the family as a whole.

It would be nice to bring back discos as my daughter really liked them.

The ELSA support is very effective and met the needs of my child each time. Miss Taylor-Wood has a clear understanding of how to assist children individually.

More fun activities like discos!

Thank you for all your comments they are most valuable. We are trying to replace the PTA which folded at the end of last year. Discos are part of our plan for the new calendar year.
Mr May

My children love Anlaby!

I would like Mr May to know...

The Hive Out of School Club

This week we have looked at the Year 2 topic Towers, Tunnels and Turrets. We have played pin the fire on the dragon, rewritten our own version of the classic fairy tale Rapunzel and started to design and build our own castle by upcycling junk.

Our Year 6 children have been researching Christmas recipes we can bake and the children have been learning how to play Boggle.

Our table tennis champion of the week is Harrison who has practised lots this week with his friends.
