Safe rules for Social Media

1 Discuss the pressure to share

Kids constantly feel pressure to share pictures and other details about their lives. Have a positive conversation about the value of privacy to help relieve them of that pressure.

2 Understand the permanence of social media

Remind your kids that there's no such thing as deleting something on social media. Knowing that whatever they share is permanent (even if they take it down) will encourage them to think about what they post.

3 Educate them about online strangers

Predators use the internet to track and contact children. It's important your child knows who he or she contacts or accepts friend requests from.

How to enforce a safe environment

Don't let your kids on social media until they reach the required age.

Keep the computer in a public, accessible location where you can see your child's activity

Limit the amount of time your kids can be on social media or online.

Block location access to all social media apps

Adjust the privacy settings to make your child's account as private as possible.

Monitor your child's activity online. Make sure the content they post is harmless with no identifiable features.
