Nurturing Hearts and Minds

Worship Reflection

There are many different reasons why someone might be a role model. It might be their talents, the way they behave, what they have achieved or the things they own. Remember, you might even be someone else's role model!

Thankyou Jesus for being the perfect role model for us. Help us to let your light shine through in all we think and say and do.

Guide us so we can be your disciples. Help us to inspire people around us.

Amen.

October is Black History Month and teachers are taking opportunities to reflect on people and events that have significantly influenced our richly diverse society.

This is the 34th year of Black History month as educators seek to rectify the distorted view of Caribbean and African history that many in the world have. In fact much of their history is omitted altogether. At St Mary Magdalen's we seek to celebrate the vast richness of diversity that black and brown people have brought to Britain.

Equality across society is a very important part of our curriculum and culture in school. Covid has meant that our equality objectives and action plan have not been reviewed for some time. If you are interested in being on our equality committee could you please let me know via the school office or catching me on the gate? Our equality committee looks at colour, ethnicity, gender, special needs and disabilities across our curriculum but also looks at the achievement of these groups within our school.

This week our behaviour focus has been working hard, lots of children have been congratulated in various ways for doing this. Next week we are focussing on saying please and thank you and using good eye contact when doing so.

Have a lovely weekend, Mrs Gallagher
