

Iain Carr

I moved to North Devon in 2007 and am originally from the north east but found my way here after several years studying and working in the Midlands. I am a pharmacist and work for the NHS.

I now have 2 young children one of which is a pupil at Pilton Infants.

I volunteered to be a governor when my son started at Pilton Infants', hoping I had something to offer and could help to contribute to ensuring local children and parents continue to have a good school in their community.
