

Newsletter no. 17

Friday 20th January 2017

We have introduced Pobble into our school which is a website where children can publish their work. Every week, up to 5 children will have their work published on a Friday on to the website. You or anyone can comment on their work. These comments are checked before they are published on the website. We are aiming to get as many comments and likes onto the children's writing which will hopefully inspire them to become a Pobble published author!

You will need to go onto

<https://www.pobble.com/>

click 'join for free' and 'I am not a teacher'

You will be asked for an email address and password. Once you have confirmation, you will be able to search for your child's writing.

Each week, we will be totalling the numbers of likes and comments on our writing!

Thank you for your support.
