

Graham Beeden, Head teacher

Background

I started teaching about 25 years ago and have generally worked in London schools. I have been a Head teacher for over 10 years and Grange is my third headship.

Reasons for becoming a governor at Grange Primary School

Grange is by far and away my favourite school I have ever worked in. It has a wide mix of children and I am proud to be their Head teacher. There is never a dull moment being a Head teacher and being responsible for so many children and staff. Whilst I was a class teacher I always volunteered to be a school governor and I saw at first hand what a positive force governors are for the school. As Head teacher I am also a governor.

What I can bring as a governor to Grange Primary School

At Grange, we lay secure foundations for children's futures, celebrate their individuality and difference and value everyone. We aim to provide an exciting and creative curriculum to challenge and motivate our pupils so that they thrive and are prepared for wherever life leads them. As a governor, I work with the other governors to establish this strategic direction for the school. As Head teacher, I lead on its day-to-day realisation.
