Dear Diary,

Yesterday was like a rollercoaster but only with its downs. As I get terrible flashbacks that haunt me until my mum gives me a hug. I wish my dad was here, I miss him dearly. Not a moment goes by without thinking about him. My heart was empty without him, it was like a peice of me drifting away. I feel I am a lonely soul.

We're safe now, yet still a shiver runs up my spine. There's nothing to do now apart from sitting in this uncomfy bed. You're my new best friend, I have only have you. Who knows where my friends are, they could be across the world. I knew we should have moved sooner then I wouldnt have to live in this dump. Parents can be so disrespectful at times, especially when they dont listen <sup>to me</sup> when they I'm right.

The truth is that I want to know who's doing this. Are they control freaks, narcisses, weirdos? I'm delighted that were in a safe place, which shocks me, and I still cry with fear. Sorrowfully, I think about all my precious things I have to leave behind. All of my photos, teddys, awards and most importantly my amazing, happy memories.
