

The Sardine Sandwich

Nogo! It was a Monday morning and John was not happy. Three reasons: It was MONDAY; who like school; and his mum was in control. His dad was on holiday and he knew there'd be no fun until he came back. He arrived at school with lunch his mum had packed for him. He didn't know what was in there.

After school, John was furious. He hadn't eaten any lunch. There was the most hideous thing in his sandwich. "WHY!" he said "WHY!". There was a fishy object inside the bread of his sandwich. His mum explained that it was a sardine and he was disgusted! He packed his lunch the next day and in it was: cookies, crisps and of course a chicken sandwich. "Hmm, something actually nice." he thought.

"What's in there...!" she asked and before she was finished John left for school.

At lunch time, John devoured his food. He ate every single bite as it lasted. He was surprised when he got home these treats wouldn't last so long after all.

On Wednesday, John's mum thought... and thought. "Why don't you have school dinners today?" asked his mum.

"Yeah, it's burgers today!" he exclaimed. "I love that."

• he didn't like the school dinners.

John arrived from school with a depressed look on his face. "What's wrong now?" his mum asked helplessly.

• his dad rebuffs

"I did NOT like the food AT ALL!" bellowed John. "It was disgusting!"

• The rest of his week was amazing.

"Don't be so rude, young boy!" His mum was sure he'd be really happy when his dad arrived.

After a few hours, John's father arrived with fun ahead for everyone.