The Brazil Nut Fairtrade Story

From today's lesson I have learnt that not only does fairtrade give extra and fair amounts of money to people who are not getting a fair amount of money, but also give transport and equipment's as trucks to move the nuts and equipment to safely clear ^{or plant} to the best Brazil Nut trees.

I also learnt that the money can help pay for children to go to secondary school and university which helps them get better paying jobs.

I learnt that fairtrade helps improve the housing of community which helps improve a worker's life.

Did You Know?

Brazil Nuts are not actually nuts and are not from Brazil. Around 20-30 seeds (what we eat) are each capsule. Brazil nuts grow in the emergent layer of the rainforest.

I pledge to...
start trying to buy something at the fairtrade shop at school.
