

Story telling is an essential part of child development. A love of stories is common to all young children, and by telling stories, rather than reading them, a storyteller can really bring the tale to life and make it a more interactive experience for the children.

Could you be one of our team of volunteer Story tellers? Do you love telling stories and love the reactions you get from the children?

We have some amazing story sacks and are looking for volunteer Story tellers to help us share them with children and their families. All ages welcome! All we need is enthusiasm !

Please let us know your interest via email: visions@rutland.gov.uk or pop into the Children's Centre, next to Oakham Library and have a chat about it.

If read this and think "oh! my friend/relation etc. would be great at this!" please pass this information onto them!
