Inclusion Statement

At Brompton-Westbrook we offer a range of support for children who have additional educational needs. Staff are equipped with strategies and resources to support the varying needs of children. Sometimes, children need individual learning targets and may require additional support from teaching assistants within the school.

The Inclusion Team work closely together with outside agencies, charities and nearby schools to deliver support to children. We also have a pastoral team who offer support for children with emotional, behavioural, and social needs. This support focuses on raising self-esteem, confidence, social and friendship skills. Staff often provide a 'listening ear' support to help children who have worries or concerns that they may need to share.

Whilst the team works alongside the class teachers to provide the best support for children in a whole class environment, some children may require additional interventions to support needs such as dyspraxia, autism, and attention, behaviour and listening difficulties. For some children who have social, emotional and behavioural difficulties a nurturing environment is available to enhance the children's full potential.

Staff within the school are experienced when dealing with new starter children. Every child is supported through their transition and we aim to make children feel settled as quickly as possible.

Children who do not speak English as their first language are assessed on arrival to the school and regular assessments take place to ensure that their spoken English progresses.
