The Jungle book

At 7:00 am Father Wolf was just beginning to stir as he prepared to go out hunting, but just as he was about to absquatulate, a jackal appeared at the threshold, Tabaqui was here he made a blessing "Good luck Father Wolf I wish you well on your journey to find food for all of the wolves as Shere Khan has moved his hunting grounds to here." Father Wolf gazed into Tabaqui's bright green eyes to

"That is against the law of the jungle!"

Father Wolf exclaimed beguilingly as sunlight shone through the mouth of the cave" you cannot change your hunting ground without telling anyone!" The villagers of the Waingunga are already mad at him for eating all their livestock.

"He is hunting no animal but man." Man is off-limits to all animals unless they are showing their young how to kill even so they have to do it outside of their hunting grounds.

A loud cry rung out among the hills it was the sound of a tiger with a lame leg, Father Wolf left the cave speedily to see what the noise was as he suspected Shere Khan had injured himself on a woodcutter's fire.
