The Jungle Book

It was seven o'clock on a warm evening, when father wolf stretched his long legs (which were tired from hunting) and furry paws. He woke up the extremely loud and noisy wolf cubs (which their fur was as grey as thunder clouds) and got ready for hunting. Jackals came to father wolf's cave to and said "jackals do not have to eat the best food!" then they found an undersized bone with no meat at the back of the abyss cave - which was very frightening and dark. "What's this?" asked the Jackal.
