AFRICA ALIVE VISITED PHOENIX CLASS

This Morning, Sam from Africa Alive visited our Class. I was really excited and happy that they were coming and bringing animals with them. They came because we are learning about Africa.

When she walked in with a box I started wondering what was inside. After she came in she told us that when we touch animals we have to wash are hands afterwards. First they, showed us some Royal Python's skin and said that they knew that the snake was healthy because the skin came off in one go. Next, she showed us another snake skin witch came from a reticulated Python. The skin was over two meters long. We all got to stroke the skin one way. When we stroke it one way it was rough but when we stroked it the other way it was smooth. She talked about the different habitats in Africa, first she talked about the rainforest habitat. Before long, she took out a Madagascan hissing Cockroach. He was called Charlie and we got to hold him and stroke him.

Secondly, she took out some Elephant dung but it was in a glass paper stop. She also took out a Lion's footprint that was made out of the Plaster of Paris. Next, she took out a Leopard Tortoise called Bedeely. When I got to stroke him it felt like a rock with a pattern on it. He was really cute.

Finally, she took out a ostrich egg which had a hole in it, the hole was made with a drill. She also said that if she jumped on it, it wouldn't break. Sam also took out some Porcupine spikes which looked like chopsticks. After that, she took out a Dabb spiny tailed lizard called Mork. We got to stroke him, his skin had an interesting feeling when you touched him.

It was really cool when Sam came, I wish she could come again with some more animals. I loved it so much, it was so fun and exciting.
