CLASS NEWS

Little Acorns

We had a fantastic odd socks day. We started by looking at odd socks and thinking about how special we all are. We were then treated to our very own story about odd socks written and illustrated for us by Kathryn Raven, a local artist and Rufus' mum. The children then made some fabulous ink drawings with sticks and ink in the style of Quentin Blake. We thought a lot about respect throughout the week and what was different and special about each one of us.

Saplings

In Saplings we have been learning more about the life of Guy Fawkes and why we celebrate Bonfire Night. It can be difficult to understand so we acted out key points from his life, moving around school as Guy Fawkes moved from York to Spain, then to London, the Houses of Parliament, and finally to the Tower of London. We looked at how he signed his name before and after he had been tortured. In the Tower of London we stretched up as straight and tall as possible to learn how he was stretched on a rack so he would give away the names of the other plotters! Gruesome!

As part of Anti-Bullying week we have started a new morning routine. The children are taking it in turns to greet the class each morning. They can choose the greeting they'd like best. It's lovely to start the day with a hug or a high five!

Great Oaks

Last week we looked at some David Hockney photomontages or 'joiners'. Then the children worked together in pairs to create their own joiners of Florence Nightingale. The results are amazing! Great Oaks then went on to draw pencil and charcoal portraits
