SILVER AWARD

Welcome to the Science newsletter. We have had a very busy Science week with lots of fun activities going on around school.

Firstly we would like to say a huge thank you to everyone who supported the FOSCS Smartie initiative. The money raised has enabled us to buy some fantastic new science resources. They arrived just before Christmas and the children in KS1 have been using them this week as part of Science Week. Some of the KS2 children have had a sneaky peak and they will be available to all in the coming term to support the teaching and learning across the school. Having fun, new resources makes learning much better so your help is very much appreciated.

Science Rocks

Our Science Week has been all about how great it is to be a scientist. The week began with a visit from 'As Creative' who delivered workshops to the whole school on the important skills needed to become a good scientist. These included looking, listening, communicating, working as a team and having patience! The children had a great time and were very enthusiastic about the activities they were asked to do.

If you didn't manage to make a voluntary contribution before the event the online payment system is still available. Thank you to those parents who have already contributed. Without your support these visits would not happen.

Our battery collection 'bin' is still in the reception area.
