A supply chain framework for the future: How to endorse the Call to Action

December 2023

Background

Through a collaborative process and consultations held between April and November 2023, a Call to Action was formally launched on December 6th at the UNFCCC Conference of Parties (COP) 28th meeting in Dubai, U.A.E.

Since amplifying the impact of emission-reduction initiatives requires collaboration and commitment by the stakeholders involved in humanitarian aid. Any humanitarian organization, humanitarian private sector partner or supplier, donor, or host government supporting the commitments summarized in the Call to Action is invited to endorse the document, stepping up in support of the sector’s efforts towards decarbonization.

Your voice matters – why to sign!

The Commitments

Within the detailed text of the Call to Action, commitments are put forward for several key stakeholders toward carbon reduction of humanitarian supply chains including:

1. Humanitarian Organizations
2. Private Sector (suppliers, transporters, and manufacturers)
3. Governmental Actors / Host Governments
4. Humanitarian Donors

How to sign the Call to Action?

If your organization is ready to sign the call to action and join the logistics networks in their decarbonization efforts, click here. You will be asked to submit a signed letter by senior management of your organization expressing consent to add your signature to the Call to Action. In addition, a high resolution organizational/company/departmental logo is required which will be added to the document, which is updated as new signatories become available and published on the Global Logistics Cluster’s WREC information portal here: https://logcluster.org/en/document/call-action-supply-chain-framework-future-reducing-carbon-footprint-humanitarian-aid

Logos will be added to the “acknowledgements” section of the Call to Action which states: This Call to Action resulted from the collective efforts of humanitarian logistics networks. The entities listed below endorse the commitments and the Call to Action by the humanitarian supply chain community and commit to collective action. The Call to Action is open for acknowledgment and endorsement by humanitarian organizations, host governments, donors, and private sector stakeholders to show their support and commitments stated within the Call to Action.
