

Special Work in West Belfast –
Rev David Moore

March 2026

The good news is that our “Month of Sundays”, the trial period of weekly worship in February has gone well and we are to continue to meet weekly from now on. We see this as vitally important if we are to grow a congregation and establish a fellowship in the area. We have been encouraged by the number of local people who have attended and we look for this to continue into the future.

On the 20th March we are holding our Community Connect event for this term at 7.30 pm in Cultúrlann. We welcome back Kenny Qua and his band Small Corner who will play traditional and other music “From the Heart”. This was really well received last year and we hope that it will extend the circle of those who know about us and, we trust, want to know more.

The Connect event for next term is yet to be finalised. However, it is likely to be another of the Walking Tours focused on the Presbyterian History of West Belfast held on one of the Saturdays in May.

Please pray:

We were delighted that the local newspaper, the Andersonstown News, used this photo and published a press release about the start of our Month of Sundays. What took us by surprise was that their whole front page was given over to the photo, while the press release took up all of page three. This was amazing coverage, and led on to a favourable piece on RTE news later that month. We know that many people in the area would have seen either or both of these, and we are hopeful that this will encourage those with spiritual questions to seek to connect with us.

- For our weekly services and especially for local people to come along
- For our Community Connect events in March and May
- For our plans for the Fleadh Ceoil and West Belfast Festival in the summer
- For the ongoing work among refugee/newcomer families especially during Ramadan (which roughly covers the period of Lent this year)
- For good engagement with the local community through the TED project Homework Club.
