

The neighbour's cockerel

There was once a foolish old man who lived next to a farm. Every morning the cockerel on the farm would wake him up.

"Stop that!" he would shout. "I'm trying to sleep."

Every day it was the same. It drove the old man to distraction.

Finally, he said to his wife, "I'm going to sort out this cockerel problem once and for all."

He stormed off to the farm.

His wife waited.

After an hour the old man returned with the cockerel under his arm. "I bought the cockerel off the farmer," he told his wife. "Now we'll see how they like it when my cockerel wakes him up every morning!"
