

What Time is Canelo vs Crawford Boxing

One of the most anticipated fights of the year has finally arrived. Canelo Alvarez and Terence “Bud” Crawford will clash in a historic undisputed super middleweight title fight on Saturday night at Allegiant Stadium in Las Vegas. This mega-fight is not only about championship gold—it’s about legacy, as both men look to cement their place among the sport’s all-time greats.

Crawford’s Path to Greatness

Terence Crawford has built a reputation as one of the most skilled pound-for-pound boxers in history. He previously became the undisputed champion at 140 pounds (2017) and repeated the feat at 147 pounds (2023). After dominating Errol Spence Jr. in 2023, Crawford moved up to junior middleweight, where he defeated Israil Madrimov in 2024, proving once again that he belongs at the highest level.

Crawford’s trainer, Brian “BoMac” McIntyre, believes intelligence will separate the fighters:

“Canelo has fought the same way for years. Bud can adapt mid-fight, and that fight IQ will be the difference.”

Canelo’s Road Back to the Spotlight

Canelo Alvarez, boxing's biggest star from Mexico, has faced criticism recently for uninspiring matchups. His win over William Scull to reclaim his undisputed status at super middleweight left fans disappointed, as Scull chose to run rather than trade punches. However, the Crawford showdown gives Canelo the perfect chance to silence critics and remind the world why he remains one of the sport's biggest attractions.

You Can Watch Canelo Alvarez vs. Terence Crawford Boxing Live Here

Action-Packed Undercard

Before the main event, fans will also see a stacked undercard featuring future stars and title contenders:

- Callum Walsh vs. Fernando Vargas Jr. – Rising Irish talent Walsh takes on Vargas Jr. at junior middleweight.
- Christian M'billi (c) vs. Lester Martinez – M'billi defends his interim WBC super middleweight title.
- Serhii Bohachuk vs. Brandon Adams – A high-stakes super welterweight battle.
- Ivan Dychko vs. Jermaine Franklin – Heavyweight clash with big implications.

Full Canelo vs. Crawford Fight Card & Odds

- Canelo Alvarez (c) -160 vs. Terence Crawford +130 – Undisputed Super Middleweight Title
- Callum Walsh -335 vs. Fernando Vargas Jr. +240 – Junior Middleweights
- Christian M'billi (c) -205 vs. Lester Martinez +150 – Interim WBC Super Middleweight Title
- Mohammed Alakel -3000 vs. John Ornelas +1100 – Lightweights
- Serhii Bohachuk -560 vs. Brandon Adams +370 – Super Welterweights
- Ivan Dychko -120 vs. Jermaine Franklin -105 – Heavyweights
- Reito Tsutsumi -5000 vs. Javier Martinez +1500 – Super Featherweights
- Sultan Almohamed vs. Martin Caraballo – Light Welterweights
- Steven Nelson -320 vs. Raiko Santana +240 – Light Heavyweights

Event Details

- Date: Saturday, September 13, 2025
- Venue: Allegiant Stadium, Las Vegas
- Main Card Start Time: 9 p.m. ET
- How to Watch: Exclusive on Netflix (subscription required)

Why This Fight Matters

This matchup has the potential to redefine boxing history. For Crawford, it's a chance to become a three-division undisputed champion—something never seen before. For Canelo, beating Crawford would restore his dominance and quiet the doubters who have questioned his recent performances.

You Can Watch Canelo Alvarez vs. Terence Crawford Boxing Live Here